How To License The OpenStack Powered Logo

Step 1: Make Sure This Program Is A Fit For Your Product

Sponsorship Requirements:

- This program requires your company to be a Platinum or Gold Foundation Member or Corporate Sponsor.
- To become a Foundation Member or Corporate Sponsor, see OpenStack.org/join (join)

Technical Requirement Summary:

- A primary purpose of your product must be to run a functioning operational instance of the OpenStack software
- Your product must:
 - upon its launch, include the OpenStack capabilities and expose the associated APIs, as specified on the OpenStack.org/interop (interop) website
 - upon its launch, include the designated sections of code specified on OpenStack.org/interop (interop) website product must pass tests as indicated on OpenStack.org/interop (interop) to verify that you are implementing a sufficiently current and complete version of the software (and exposing associated APIs) to ensure compatibility and interoperability.
- You must clearly state which OpenStack projects and release versions are used in the product to set customer expectations in a way that is conspicuous to customers

Next Steps:

1. Complete the form on the next page indicating your interest in the OpenStack Powered program.
2. Go to OpenStack.org/interop (interop) to verify your product meets the technical requirements for designated code required capabilities. Follow instructions to run the interoperability test and submit results.
3. Once Foundation verifies test results, license agreement will be executed.
